

7th international EFJCA Conference and network meeting

Heraklion, Greece - 6 and 7 October 2025

From Vision to Implementation: Advancing Gender-Responsive Multidisciplinary Policies Towards Sustainable Family Justice Centers

The European Family Justice Center Alliance (EFJCA), the Union of Women Associations of Heraklion and the Regional Authority of Crete are pleased to invite you to a two-day international conference dedicated to strengthening multidisciplinary responses to gender-based and domestic violence.

This conference brings together professionals and organizations from Greece and across Europe working in the fields of policing, justice, social work, health-care, youth services, NGOs, and government. With a focus on exchange, networking, and learning, the event will highlight models such as the Family Justice Centers (FJC) and explore how to implement and sustain multidisciplinary approaches.

Special attention will be given to the essential role of governments and policymakers in ensuring the long-term sustainability of FJCs and related models. A diverse lineup of Greek and international speakers with deep expertise will share good practices and practical insights.

Participants will engage in interactive sessions on key themes critical to building and managing effective multidisciplinary responses. The conference offers space for meaningful dialogue and international networking, providing inspiration and concrete tools to strengthen daily practice.

Join us for two days of knowledge-sharing, collaboration, and connection.

15.45 From Surviving to Transforming: Understanding Perpetrators and Strengthening System Accountability

by James Henderson

Henderson brings a compelling and deeply personal perspective to the conversation on domestic violence. Drawing from his own experience as a survivor of family violence and his decades of work in offender accountability, probation, and system reform, he explores the complex profiles of perpetrators and the critical need for coordinated, informed responses. This keynote highlights the responsibility of institutions to not only hold perpetrators accountable but also to ensure safety and justice for victims. With clarity and passion, Henderson challenges professionals to move beyond victim-blaming and center their efforts on systemic change and perpetrator-focused strategies.

10.10 Empowering women through social awareness, care and solidarity programs
by Vicky Arali
Vicky Arali is the Founder & Communications Manager of the Non-Profit Company Immortaliting, which implements actions to support vulnerable groups. As a single parent with a deep understanding of the challenges faced by mothers without a support network, she has dedicated her work to empowering other women through social awareness, care and solidarity programs. With the aim of combating gender-based violence and strengthening single-parent families, she actively contributes to the creation of a more just and inclusive society.

10.40 Walking the Extra Mile for Victims
by Valerie Swennen
Valerie Swennen, police detective with extensive experience in cases of gender-based and domestic violence, serves as the liaison officer for the Flemish 'Veilig Huizen' and is a dedicated trainer with the EFJCA. Valerie highlights the critical need for a multidisciplinary approach and urges systems to adapt to the needs of victims – not the other way around. She speaks to the profound impact of coercive control and intimate terrorism on both adults and children, and underlines the importance of a truly victim-centered response. With conviction and compassion, she calls on all professionals to go that extra mile – because only then can we truly make a difference in the lives of those affected.

11.10 Coffee break

11.40 Information Sharing in Family Justice Centers and Multidisciplinary Models
Effective information sharing is a cornerstone of successful multidisciplinary collaboration in the response to gender-based and domestic violence. Berte Van Heemst, Prosecutor at the Public Prosecutor's Office in Rotterdam, and Davy Simons, strategic coordinator of the City of Antwerp at the FJC Veilig Huis in Antwerp, share their experiences and insights from the Netherlands and Belgium. The speakers will explore how information sharing is organized within their respective systems, including legal frameworks, protocols, and trust-building between partners.

12.30 Lunch

13.30 Risk Assessment and Digital Tools in Practice
This session explores how digital platforms support risk assessment and case management in domestic and gender-based violence.
• Nienke Scholten (Belgium), Strategic Advisor Police, Prosecution and Intersectoral Cooperation of the department gender-based violence at the Flemish government will present the WIDA-system, a brand-new model designed to improve interagency collaboration in the approach of gender-based violence and domestic violence in Flanders.
• Leticia Matarranz (Spain), inspector of the Spanish national police, head of the VioGén System Service within the Secretariat of State for Security at the Spanish Ministry of the Interior will introduce VioGén, the Spanish national tool for risk assessment and victim protection.

The session offers practical insights into the use, benefits, and challenges of digital systems in multidisciplinary settings.
